ABOUT FOOD

What we accept and believe to be Truth today is likely to be the Fallacy of tomorrow.

Ideas change with changing conditions and deep-seated notions are thus exploded. New theories, not always sound, replace old ones and often we are carried away with a conception that is false and harmful, just because some crackpot has enunciated it. Fortunately there are truths, eternal verities, which resist all assaults and thus, eventually we come back to an even balance despite our brain storms.

Perhaps there is no more controversial subject than food and the most of us are afflicted with a complex regarding it. In the search for health many people are willing to try anything, and therefore are easy dupes for the unscrupulous, whose only interest in their welfare centers in the pocketbooks of the victims.

For a time we heard so much about vitamins, alphabetically labeled, that the impulse was to shoot anyone who mentioned them. There are facts in food as well as in other things and we are prone to fall for them. It has not been so long ago that the "Hollywood diet" seized the imagination of the women of the nation, but with harmful, instead of beneficial, results. In the great majority of cases, while not setting myself up as an authority I do not think that God Almighty ever

Elks Lodges To Pay Honor To Grand Ruler

Members of Richmond Lodge of Elks will trek to Alameda on Friday night to attend a joint meeting of Elks of the bay region in honor of Grand Exalted Ruler James T. Hallinan of Queensborough, New York.

Hallinan will arrive on Thursday night at Oakland and he will be met there by exalted rulers of the lodges of the area. C. C. Anglin, ruler of Richmond lodge will be among those to greet Hallinan and his staff which includes Grand Secretary J. E. Masters and Lloyd Maxwell, chairman of the board of grand trustees. On Friday night a 6:30 dinner at Hotel Alameda will precede the meeting.

Next Tuesday night members of the lodge will hear H. J. Brunier, a consulting engineer, who will deliver a talk on the bay bridge. He will illustrate his address. W. C. Walker will be chairman of the evening.

Last evening George M. Smith, of San Jose, president of the California Elks Association was honored guest of Richmond Lodge. Members of the Pittsburg lodge were in attendance.

John Kroyer, of Santa Rosa, vice president of the association, was also in attendance.

Previous to the meeting Smith, officers of Pittsburg lodge and a Richmond lodge and visitors were guests at a dinner held at Hotel Carquest, Anglin was the host at the affair.

The meeting was featured by one of the largest initiations ever held by the lodge.

Smith delivered an interesting talk to the lodges, telling of the aims and ideals of Elksdom and stressing the pro-American activities of the fraternal body.

Death Crash Trial Will Begin Today

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—Indicted by the grand jury on a manslaughter charge, Clifford D. Andrews, 38, of 642 Fifth street, Richmond, will go to trial before a jury in Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston's court tomorrow.

Attorney T. M. Carlson of Richmond will defend him.

The Richmond man is charged with responsibility for the death of Miss Virginia Christensen, 28, Salinas teacher, who suffered fatal injuries last June 29, in an automobile collision near Pinole.

33 Are Rescued In Wreck Of Freighter

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—UP—Another drama of the high seas was enacted in the storm-whipped Atlantic, 400 miles off the Maryland coast late today as 33 members of the crew of a sinking Greek freighter abandoned ship and were taken aboard the American liner, City of Newport News.

The American ship was the first of a flotilla of six rescue vessels to reach the side of the distressed cargo carrier, Stefanos (costumed), which flashed an SOS last night that it was "leaking badly."

Throughout the night and day the crew of the Greek vessel fought valiantly to keep afloat the 540-ton craft, whose broken seams were admitting water faster than the ship's pumps could pour it back into the sea.

Realizing the hopelessness of their fight, the master of the Stefanos Costomelos flashed a plea to the rescue ships ploughing laboriously through mountainous waves. "Save the crew," the message read.

The City of Newport News arrived at the side of the sinking vessel shortly before 3 P. M. Only a few feet of the hull and the superstructure were visible.

Defendant Wins In $45,000 Suit For Man's Death

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—Deliberating upon the case for only two hours, a jury in Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston's court today denied damages to the plaintiff in the $45,000 death suit filed by Mrs. Minnie V. Jordens against the Southern Pacific company, D. S. Leiditz and W. D. Lloyd.

(Mrs. Jordens had asked damages for death of her husband, Ernest Jordens, railway mail clerk, who was struck by a train at the Martinez depot December 21, 1934.)

The case had been on trial for the past eight days and was given to the jury shortly after 11 o'clock this morning.

Attorneys James J. Hoey of Martinez, John T. Mahoney and Thomas P. O'Brien of San Francisco represented the plaintiff while T. M. Carlson and R. V. Collins, Richmond attorneys, were counsel for the defense.

Carlson Tells Club Of Water Project

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—Stressing the necessity to Contra Costa county in formation of a water district to secure water from the Great Central Valley water project thru a Contra Costa conduit, Thomas M. Carlson, Richmond attorney, outlined the history of the water plan today at the meeting of the Martinez Lions' club in the Travelers Hotel.

A week ago the Lions passed a resolution to support the formation of a water district, and since additional information on the water plan was desired, R. R. Veale obtained Carlson as a speaker.

RAID MADE ON BANK BY U. S. AGENTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—UP—A hoard of $200,000 in $20 gold pieces was seized by Secret Service agents late today from a safe deposit box in the Chemical Bank Building.

William H. Houghton, Secret Service chief here, refused to reveal identity of the owner.

LARRY SHAPIRO, it was one of the largest seizures ever made under the federal act forbidding private possession of gold and was the first in New York in many months.

Unsettled security surrounded the raid. Houghton told reporters that if they wished additional information they would have to see James H. Dineen, acting Contra Costa district attorney, who, too, refused to say anything.

Wife Asks For All Property In Divorce Action

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—Citing allegations of cruelty, Mrs. Ruby Tibbets of Richmond today filed suit for divorce in superior court here against Mark James Tibbets, railroad employe, through Attorneys T. M. Carlson and Robert V. Collins.

The couple married November 1, 1924 and separated January 25, 1936. They have community property consisting of a home at 612-27th street, Richmond, worth $5,000 and other property.

Mrs. Tibbets asserts her husband struck and choked her and accused her falsely of associating with other men.

She asks custody of a minor child and $100 per month temporary alimony. She also asks to be given all community property.

Italian Army Is Entrenching

ITALIAN ARMY FIELD HEADQUARTERS, Northern Ethiopia, via courier and airplane, Feb. 18.—UP—A new 15-mile line of machine-gun redoubts, "pillboxes" and stone fortresses was completed today on the Ethiopian side of Amba Aradam, the fortified mountain taken in the battle of Enderta, making the position of the victorious Italians impregnable to counter attack.

Blackshirt soldiers already have started rebuilding the narrow, primitive, grass-grown roads, "the highway of the Negus" which serpentine from Seelicot, now held by the Italians, toward Addis Ababa.

It is along this route that Marshal Pietro Badoglio plans to advance toward Amba Aradam, the rugged mountain "fastness" to the south where the Ethiopians must make another stand or leave open the road to their capital.

Mr. Roosevelt Approves Probe Of Waterfront

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—UP—President Roosevelt today promised Harry Bridges, president of the San Francisco local of the International Longshoremen's Association, "serious consideration" of his request that the Department of Labor and Congress investigate labor conditions on the Pacific Coast.

Bridges said today he had received a reply from the president to a recent letter signed by himself and Mervyn Rathbone, Maritime Federation official, in which he charged shipowners were conspiring to crush sea unions and bring about a "civil war" here.

LETTER REVEALED

The contents of the letter from the president, as released here by Bridges, read:

"The letter from you and Mr. Rathbone in which you call attention to the maritime situation on the Pacific Coast is appreciated.

"It would be most unfortunate for all concerned should such conditions as you describe materialize.

"I am informed the Secretary of Labor and some of the Congressmen also have been contacted by you and your associates and that the matter is being given serious consideration."

Cheers Greet Arrival Of Food Trains

(By UNITED PRESS)

Winter cracked a frosty whip over the central United States Tuesday for the 31st day of unprecedented weather severity broken only by occasional brief respite.

Two hundred residents of Athol, Iowa, who have torn down empty buildings for fuel, and lived on scraps for days, cheered the first train to reach their town in eleven days with a supply of flour, sugar and fuel.

A dozen other Iowa towns have been without a train for sixteen days. Suffering was intense.

The town council of Bedford, Iowa, near Athol, declared a fuel emergency and confiscated incoming coal. A municipal coal yard was set up, at a maximum of 500 pounds issued to each citizen on approval of Mayor J. S. Nevius.

Death ranged over a wide area. It crushed six in a mining camp snow slide near Mancos, Colo., struck down many more in hazardous traffic and gas seeped from frost-cracked gas mains to asphyxiate 14 in widely scattered areas.

Board Delays Selection Of Church Builder

Employment of an architect to design the new addition to the First Presbyterian church was delayed by the building committee at a short business meeting held last night at the church.

The committee will probably make the selection at the meeting to be held next Tuesday night.

Routine business matters occupied attention of the board during the session.

El Cerrito Women Buy Local Cafe

The B. B. Cafe at 1224 Macdonald avenue yesterday was purchased by Adele Weltz and Jewel Bogess, two ladies from El Cerrito who have had extended and successful experience in the restaurant business.

It is their announced policy to serve the best of food, cooked in appetizing style and at reasonable prices.

Their intention within a few days, after necessary and additional equipment is secured is to keep the place open all night.

Relief Load To Be Shifted To Counties

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—Contra Costa county officials lacked today any definite facts on plans of Governor Frank Merriam to return to counties on April 1 the administration of direct relief to unemployed persons. The governor had intended making the administrative change effective on March 1 but faces delays.

So far, officials here have not been informed whether the state contemplates that counties shall assume the principal portion of the burden of support and they have not been informed by the SRA of the probable number to be returned to county rolls in the event the governor presses his program.

Clare D. Horner Is Influenza Victim

Clare D. Horner, well known Richmond attorney, is confined to his home suffering from an attack of influenza. He will be able to resume his duties within a short time.

ANN TELLS COURT ABOUT OPERATION

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—UP—Ann Cooper Hewitt, testifying in a subdued voice, told a municipal judge today that she was completely unaware of the purpose of a sterilization operation performed on her at her mother's request.

The dark-eyed, full-lipped little heiress to a $2,000,000 fortune, chiefly attired in rough sports clothing, calmly presented her story at the preliminary hearing of Doctors Tilton Tiltman and Samuel G. Boyd on mayhem charges in connection with the surgery.

KNEW NOTHING

"I didn't know what they were going to do," she declared. "When I was given a mental test, no mention was made of why I was being asked those questions. I was not told an operation was to be performed until I was taken to the hospital. And then I was told the operation would be for appendicitis only."

"Would you have objected to the operation if you had known what it was intended to do?" kindly Judge Sylvian Lazarus, grey-haired veteran of the municipal courts, asked her.

LEARNED LATER

"I would not have allowed it," she answered.

Ann said that she did not learn the nature of the operation until almost a year later, and previously had no knowledge of such matters. Not until she filed suit for an accounting of her mother's handling.

Initiation By Radio Planned By Honor Post

A huge radio initiation of candidates was planned last evening by Honor Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars at its meeting held at the Memorial hall.

The affair will take place on the evening of March 3. At that time National Commander James Van Zandt will make a nationwide address and will obligate the candidates of the various V. F. W. posts throughout the nation.

Last night George F. Imbach, department senior vice-commander delivered an interesting and instructive talk to the post on the bonus and the membership drive.

Commander C. O. Davis presided over the session and Frank Stallar and committee served refreshments.

20 Nudists Are Shipwrecked In Hunt For Utopia

BOCA GRANDE, Fla., Feb. 18.—UP—Heavy disconsolate and exceedingly damp, 20 bedraggled nudists wedged and swam to uninhabited San Pedro Island tonight, marking another milestone in their Utopian argosy.

Far from the sunny shores of some Caribbean island where they hope to find Utopia and warmth, Captain Maurice Allard and his Vana Vana followers came to night just beyond the surf of San Pedro Island.

Off-shore, high but not so dry on a sand bar, was lodged the road ship Fleetwood, her rudder damaged and the seams on the under-structure of her 50 year old hull opened.

Blumenfeld Free; Widow Is Alarmed

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 18.—UP—Mrs. Edith Liggett will flee from Minnesota at once in fear for her life, the United Press learned tonight shortly after a jury acquitted Isadore Blumenfeld, the murderer of her husband.

The dark-eyed widow of Walter Liggett will sell the Mid-West American, the weekly newspaper in which Liggett published attacks upon the Minneapolis underworld and upon the state's highest officials.

"I cannot live any longer in Minneapolis," Mrs. Liggett told the United Press. "My life is in constant danger. A fear vengeance from the gang which killed my husband."

NOT GUILTY VERDICT

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 18.—UP—Isadore Blumenfeld tonight was acquitted of the machine-gun assassination of Walter Liggett, militant editor whose death rocked Minnesota from its underworld to highest officialdom.

Blumenfeld, former alcohol runner and once a suspect in the Orrell kidnapping case, was found not guilty by a jury of eight men and four women who deliberated a little more than two hours.

Army Hero To Be Given Medal

SEATTLE, Feb. 18.—UP—The U. S. Army will honor Master Sergeant Stanley Morgan of the Signal Corps February 20, by presenting him with a soldier's medal, for his work during the Point Barrow, Alaska, influenza epidemic last May, it was announced today.

Col. Henry A. Finch, commandant of Fort Lawton, Seattle, will make the presentation before a review of troops.

Sergeant Morgan, one of the few white persons at the Arctic coast port, aided in caring for the nearly 200 victims of the disease. Fifteen persons, all but one Eskimo, died.

In August Morgan won fame by recovering the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post after their plane crashed near Point Barrow, and flashing the news of the disaster to the world.

Attempt Is Made To Rob Station

Richmond police last night were investigating an attempt made to rob a service station located at 7th and San Pablo avenues.

Antonio Patrick, operator of the station, reported that some unknown persons entered the station by the back door and attempted to steal a cash register and a safe. The thieves fled when they saw the police.

CARLSON AND COLLINS AID MRS. M'CORD

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—The legal firm of Thomas M. Carlson and Robert Collins was today added as defense counsel in the case of Mrs. Ruth M'Cord, who goes on trial next Tuesday, charged with appropriation of public funds while serving as social service director in this county.

Ralph Wight of Martinez, who represented Mrs. M'Cord at the time of her appearance before the William Lewis grand jury, which returned the true bill with five counts against her, will also appear as her counsel at the trial, which promises to be one of the causes celebre in the history of local criminal courts.

The decision to employ the Richmond attorneys, who have established an enviable reputation not alone in Contra Costa but also trans bay county courts of securing acquittals for the clients they represent, was reached at a conference of the interested parties here today. What transpired at the interview, held in the county jail with the accused woman, was not made public, but following it the announcement was made that Carlson and Collins were retained.

PARAGUAY TO RESPECT ITS PEACE TREATY

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Colonel Rafael Franco, exiled Paraguayan hero of the Chaco war, said today that the new provisional government of Paraguay will respect the peace agreement with Bolivia and will continue negotiations.

Franco is believed to be the supreme chief of the Paraguayan military forces which overthrew the government of President Eusebio Ayala and seized control of Asuncion, the capital.

Franco said the movement was not inspired by Communism. It was merely a case of the army interpreting popular discontent with the government.

Franco was invited by the revolutionary chiefs to return to Asuncion immediately to head the provisional government until elections can be held. He has engaged an Argentine airplane to fly him to Asuncion tomorrow. Franco was interned in Argentina two weeks ago when the Paraguayan government first learned of army officers' plan to seize power.

Colonel Franco told newspapermen that he had no connection with or previous knowledge of the revolution.

Unofficial sources said the government intended to send a squadron of river gunboats from Rosario to Posadas, on the Paraguayan frontier, as a safeguard of Argentine neutrality.

Today's Safe Driving Hint

By The National Safety Council

SPEED

The higher the speed, the worse the accident. In other words, speed may not necessarily cause accidents but it makes them much more serious if they do happen. An accident at low speed will probably cause only slight damage to your car; at high speed it is likely to cause death.

Where no fixed speed limit exists, you must be the final judge of safe speed. Consider the highway, the traffic, the weather and the condition of your vehicle.

High speed is especially dangerous in residential sections, in alleys and in congested areas. Always be ready to meet the emergency of a child dashing in front of your car. Slow down at school zones.

Always be in a position to stop within the range of your vision at intersections and curves. Lose a minute any time rather than risk a life.

Bail Released In Raid Case

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—J. J. Jerome, operator of the El Cerrito Key club, today had returned to him by Justice of the Peace A. B. Wilson $1,500 in bail he deposited for 13 to 22 employees of his track, arrested in December in a raid by district attorney's operatives to test the legality of track operation.

Jerome had deposited half of $300 for 12 of the employees and $200 for the thirteenth. Charged against them were dismissed.

Justice Wilson still has under consideration whether he will hold nine other employees to superior court trial on charges of District Attorney Francis P. Healey that their work on the track in selling and handling options constituted pool disposal and is gambling.

Justice Wilson is studying the 21 pages of transcript of testimony given at the preliminary examination.

CHARLIE, GIRL FRIEND SAIL FOR HAWAII

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Sound of the lullaby, figurative and motion picture variety—occupied Charlie Chaplin as he paused near the waterfront to his hotel and the South Sea.

The first sound (lullaby variety) which greeted Chaplin's ears was that of the lullaby variety of Miss Patricia Goddard, Chaplin's leading lady and reputed fiancée, speaking in a lullaby tone, with Charlie and her mother, Mrs. A. A. Goddard.

The second (figurative speaking) was that of Miss Goddard and her mother disappearing before the interviewers could come within ear shot to find out what all the crying was about.

Chaplin, bundled in a huge brown overcoat, relieved by a brilliant blue shirt, arrived here today with Miss Goddard and her mother, Mrs. A. A. Goddard. With his new picture, "Modern Times" starring Miss Goddard in the female lead, opening around the world, Chaplin now is en route to the Hawaiian Islands and South Seas for a vacation tour. He also intends to work on a possible scenario for another picture, he revealed.

Charlie discussed the third variety of sound.

"I shall probably veer away from my tramp role some day. I just can't go around making him talk. He's a vestige of the silent days of pantomime."

"But no more five year intervals between pictures—I'm going to make two a year now," he announced.

His statement was taken as proof of his readiness to embark on an ambitious program of sound picture production. For years Chaplin has held aloof from such a course, only recently embracing sound possibilities. "Modern Times" has but one sound sequence in which Chaplin speaks.

After his brief interview Charlie skidded off to the purser's office, then hurried to make a telephone call to Douglas Fairbanks in Hollywood on a business matter.

He and his party will remain aboard the President Coolidge while in port. They sail Friday.

Wives Compare Notes; Husband Faces Bigamy

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—(UP)—A marital tangle in which two wives met by chance through a newspaper item and compared "notes" tonight resulted in a grand jury bigamy indictment against Herbert Arnold Hallett.

The indictment charged Hallett married Mrs. Ida Hallett's marriage, while there on a visit at the home of her brother, she told the jury, she saw a newspaper article saying Hallett was married to Mrs. Hallett.

Mrs. Hallett, 22, came to San Francisco with Mrs. Hallett No. 1. They followed their introduction with an exchange of photographs of their "husbands", and, according to their testimony, established to their mutual satisfaction that they were married to the same man.

Brooke Is Given Embalmer's License

Edwin Brooke, employee of the Wilson and Krazer funeral chapel, yesterday received word from San Francisco that he has successfully passed examinations given in Los Angeles last December. He averaged 82.25 percent for the test.

Brooke has now received his license as an embalmer.

CHURCH PAPERS OF GERMANY TO BE CONTROLLED

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—(UP)—The independence of both Catholic and Protestant church papers has been abolished today by decree of Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, regardless of the rumored intention of the freedom of publications under auspices of the Catholic clergy.

This means that editors' law, governing the Nazi-controlled press, is now applicable to all papers except those publishing only official church announcements.

Goebbels' decree said the measure was necessary because the church papers misused their freedom in discussing politics and attacking communists on government matters.

Under the editors' law, editors of church papers in the future must be Aryans, pledged unconditionally to support government measures. This regulation, it was believed, would restrict further church activities to combat Nazi religious propaganda.

NO FIDELITY TEST

MARTINEZ, Feb. 18.—The use of supervisors has directed County Clerk S. C. Wells to write a letter to the directors of the county vehicle department, requesting that they order a civil service examination to provide a list of eligible highway traffic patrol service. Contra Costa county, the county is without an eligible list now.

GUARD BABY AGAINST RICKETS

It is fairly easy to guard the infant against rickets and if you know a little about the disease you can protect your baby from it. Rickets is a disease of the bones which causes them to become soft and weak. It is caused by a lack of Vitamin D in the body. The bones of the spine and of the pelvis may fail to grow normally. The teeth may be badly formed and the fontanel of the skull may be slow in closing so that the baby's head is "soft spot" longer than it should. Failure of the bones to harden properly is one of the characteristic symptoms of rickets.

Some of the earlier symptoms of rickets, which appear before the changes in the bones take place, are: constipation, restlessness, profuse sweating about the head and frequent rolling of the head back and forth on the pillow which wears the hair off over the back of the head. The baby with rickets does not stand or walk as he should and the abdomen becomes large and fatty. These mother should watch for these early signs of rickets and watch for them, especially during winter.

The cause of rickets is a lack of Vitamin D in the body. Vitamin D has been called the "sunshine" vitamin and in many ways it is the most remarkable vitamin we have discovered. It may be obtained in two different ways. Vitamin D may be put into the body through using foods which contain it, or your body may manufacture it when the ultra violet rays of the sun are allowed to come upon the bare skin. Artificial sun lamps or ultra violet ray lamps may be substituted for the direct rays of the sun and thus form an additional means of obtaining Vitamin D.

The intense, year-around sunlight which floods down upon the tropics furnishes the unprotected native baby with an abundance of Vitamin D and he is therefore, not in the slightest danger of rickets. The Eskimo infant, shut away from the sun during the northern winter, could not depend upon the rays of the sun to guard him from rickets; nevertheless, he is safe from the disease because the diet of the Eskimo mother during the winter period and during pregnancy, contains plenty of the foods rich in Vitamin D, such as fish livers. The baby born in the temperate zone is the one who must be guarded against rickets for during the winter the Vitamin D built up through sunbaths. The accepted method of protecting infants from rickets in such circumstances consists of feeding the infant a Vitamin D preparation such as cod liver oil, viosterol, haliver oil, etc.

Rickets is distinguished by being a "geographical" disease and whether your baby is in danger of developing it, will depend to a great extent upon where you live. The treatment to be used, must likewise depend upon the climate and in cold climates where little sunshine is available, special care must be given to prevent the disease from appearing.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(William T. Smith)

Question: Mrs. R. T. S. asks: "My husband has had considerable trouble with his wisdom tooth which seems abscessed. The dentist now wants to extract the tooth as he says this is the only way in which the trouble can be permanently overcome. An X-ray picture shows that the tooth is not coming in at the proper angle and the dentist says the jaw does not provide sufficient room for the tooth to fit. Do you think the tooth can be saved?"

Answer: Under the circumstances, the best plan is to follow the advice of the dentist and have the tooth extracted before another abscess develops. You do not say so in your letter, but I judge that there is evidence of infection of the jaw. With the tooth removed, future trouble will be avoided.

(Albany)

Question: "Reader" inquires: "Does the fact that a person has a large nose mean that the person has a large brain?"

Answer: A trace of albumin may be found in the sweat of the kidney elimination even though the kidneys are not perfectly healthy. Albumin may be produced by a certain type of diet, or by other causes, including a disease of the kidneys such as Bright's disease or Nephritis. A re-test may show that the albumin was due to a temporary cause and only a trace was noted on the first report. I will be glad to send you an article ALBUMIN in my column which will tell you more about it. This article is available to all of my readers who write to me in care of this newspaper and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents.

RUNYON YARN ON FRIDAY BILL AT THE FOX

With a fascinating Damon Runyon yarn for its basis, the writing of Gene Fowler, the combined talents of Victor McLaglen, Freddie Bartholomew and a great cast, "Professional Soldier" will be item number one on tomorrow's big double program at the Fox theater.

"The Murder of Doctor Harrigan," with Ricardo Cortez and Mary Astor, is the second feature on the incoming bill.

From the minute Victor McLaglen takes his friend home from the Cafe Select in Paris after knocking out everybody in the place, to the minutes he settles disloyal troops of "King Peter" by moving them down single-handed, "Professional Soldier" is a series of one-hill and laughter after the other.

The Michael Donovan of McLaglen is very tough, so tough, in fact, that two foreign notables hire him to kidnap their king.

The thrilling climax of the picture comes when the young king is kidnapped and threatened with death.

Then for the first time McLaglen forgets that he fights only for money and stages the fiercest scrap for someone he loves.

Among the prominent players in the supporting cast are Gloria Stuart, Constance Collier and C. Henry Gordon.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The President's closest advisors are hammering hardest now on the idea that he must eliminate bickering within his own official family.

Repeatedly they have told him that he can't "regiment" a nation when he can't "regiment" his own Cabinet.

The advice comes from his very best friends. They have pointed out that a radical speech by Tugwell one day and a conservative speech by Roper the next, left a bad taste in the mouth of the public.

Even Ickes and Wallace, two of the closest friends in the Cabinet, sometimes take public digs at each other.

WHITE HOUSE SECRETARIAT

The chief difficulty is that the president himself is too much of a "good fellow." He won't crack down on his quarrelling associates, and no one else in the Cabinet is strong enough to do so.

Another basic difficulty lies right in the White House. The President is surrounded by two secretaries; one of whom is accused of hostility to basic New Deal policies, while the other is over-zealous.

Secretary Marvin McIntyre has been the cause of a lot of bickering by callers subscribing to New Deal ideas who frequently find it next to impossible to get by him to see the President—even when Roosevelt requests them to call.

There have been increasing intimations recently that the President is aware that Mac, acting as a buffer, buffs out the wrong people.

The other day, when Roosevelt decided to invite Senator Borah to the widely-publicized luncheon conference, he called in McIntyre and told him to issue the invitation.

"And," he added, "I want you to be sure to see to it that the Senator gets the invitation."

Steve Early, Secretary of Press Relations, has been loaded down with Louie Howe's duties since Howe's illness. Steve is a conscientious, faithful worker, not overly imbued with the President's own philosophy, but an asset to his staff.

Of late, however, Steve has left many of his press contacts to a corps of snippy young stenographers, with the result that White House press relations have suffered.

Steve is now serving as a clearing house for all Administration speeches, especially those touching upon the Supreme Court and the Constitution. The order has gone out that Cabinet members must cease firing on these issues at cross-purposes with one another.

Shortly after this order was issued, one Cabinet member completely ignored the edict and fired a blast about "class pitted against class," which kicked up considerable furor.

Apparently the President will have to resort to army discipline to get unity of policy in his heterogeneous family of prima donnas.

BOSS

There was no question who was boss at the recent convention of the United Mine Workers Union.

During one, exciting session a delegate leaped to his feet and in a loud voice demanded recognition.

"For what purpose does the delegate rise?" asked President John L. Lewis.

"I want to go on record."

"If the delegate wants to go on record," broke in Lewis, "let him write it on a piece of paper and hand it to the secretary. Next business!"

The 1700 delegates roared with laughter.

DIRT'S WINDFALL

Refund of the $1,000,000,000 in AAA taxes, which the meat packers and other big processors who paid them are preparing to demand, may concern the sudden death of a doctor about to operate on a patient in a hospital. The doctor disappears and then the patient. The crimes are prompted by struggle over possession of a mysterious formula.

"So Red The Rose" with Margaret Sullivan, Randolph Scott and Walter Connolly, plus "We're Only Human" with Preston Foster, Jane Wyatt and James Gleason, are the features playing for the last time today at the Fox.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Jeanne Dane, the 13 year old actress in "Call It a Day," has become the wonderkind of the current Hollywood scene. The youngster's remarkable poise, memory and stage skill is the talk of Broadway, and already Hollywood's siren call is singing in her ears.—Did you know that England's new King Edward is an expert embroiderer?—The latest recommendation to ladies bent on reducing their girth comes from the boys in Tin Pan Alley. Let women take up orchestral conducting, they insist, and the muscle-stretching involved will do more good than a hundred electric belts.—Helen Morgan has set aside Mondays at her cafe as movie "guest of honor" nights. Edward G. Robinson and John Boles have already served duty, and the piano-draping Helen intends to go right down her list of film friends.—The transit union plan submitted by Samuel Seabury and A. A. Berle, Jr., is exactly 143 pages long. No wonder the final outcome has had such a long delay.—A couple of months ago I turned in a dissenting report on Clifford Odets, the much-heralded young playwright, in which I said he was really a writer of light comedy who could turn out entertaining stuff if he dropped his high social interpretations. Mr. Odets is now headed for Hollywood, to write the film scenario of his "Paradise Lost." Prediction: Two years from now, Mr. Odets will be pulling down a huge salary grinding out peppy comedy for the flickers.

PROTECTION A Fifth Avenue lawyer whom I know decided recently that he wanted to locate in Birmingham, Alabama. He wrote to an acquaintance there, asking what prospects existed in that city for an honest young lawyer and Republican.

Pretty soon he received this reply: "If you are an honest lawyer, you will have absolutely no competition. If you are a Republican, the game laws will protect you."

THYTHIED—"Dear Don O'Malley," Ray Perkins wrote to me yesterday in an awful dither, "I thought I discovered that thome thomeking theoundrel thtlo into my living room and pliffed the eth from my typewriter! Therefore, I would like to take thith opportunity to apologize to my litheneeth if they should obtherve thath, I lillip on my program next Thun-day. Becauth I mutht write my thcript without any etheth and thith going to be a thevere thathk reading it thiththththly. Thith-therly, Ray Perkinth."

ENCORE—That old debbil—the claue—is haunting the Metropolitan Opera House again. Earlier in the season Manager Edward John-son loudly announced that he had banished the horny-handed gentry from the hill forever. They were back in a few weeks, however, and only the other day Charles Allegri, a barber on West Thirty-eighth St., spluttered out more charges against the noise-makers.

Mr. Allegri was sore, not because the claue has returned, but because as an old time claueur of twenty-one years' experience, he himself can no longer get in on the business. It seems, according to Mr. Allegri's charges, that a new boss has gotten control of the applause-making delegation, and has cornered the market for Rosa Pon-selle, Lawrence Tibbett, Elizabeth Renberg and Nino Martini. Mr. Allegri would also like to help those singers along the path of recognition, but the new boss won't even listen to him.

My support is on Mr. Allegri's side. They've got the same old operas at the Metropolitan—why not the same old claue?

One Christmas Eve
by Ruth Louise Ayers

It is Christmas Eve on House-boat Row, squalid river colony. Big Adam, evangelist, holds sermons in his backshot Mission, little knowing that his son Dan, lured by two crooks, has got into serious trouble. Dan was offered fifty dollars to hold up a jewelry store but, on entering the store, found the jeweler had been mur-dered! Panic-stricken, fearful the police will be after him, and afraid to go home, he has sought shelter at Luke Connors' floating bar, down the Row from his father's Mission. Meanwhile, Vincent, Luke's rich and aristocratic, has come to see Luke's daughter, Nightingale. He asks her to marry him, but Nightingale, though she returns his love, says she can't marry him. Vincent, who is completely deaf-dumb, but on lip-reading, thinks this is the reason. When she protests, he asks, "What other reason could there be?"

CHAPTER XXIII

NIGHTINGALE hesitated before she answered Vincent's question. When she spoke, she looked steadily into his eyes.

"I can't marry you, Vincent, because you and I come from opposite ends of the world. I know, I was out on deck to-night and I could see the lights in your house. A big house, Vincent, with all that a big house stands for. And some day, a girl from a house like yours will come along and make you happy. She'll make you happy where I could not, because she'll be—well, one of your kind."

She paused, flung out her hands in a little gesture of despair.

"Don't you see? I'm just a kid from a houseboat—a series of them all the same. Heavy with the smell of steak and onions and rivermen's clothes." Vincent started to interrupt, but she stopped him.

"Oh I know that, to you and your people, a houseboat is a riverfront may seem sort of picturesque and different—from a distance. Students from the art schools come down to sketch the row in the spring. Newspapers use human-interest stories about it. But when you come right down to it, it's miserable and ground. I haven't even had much schooling—all I can do is sing cheap songs. People would laugh at you for marrying me—laugh, I tell you, if Vincent Rocks married a river barkeeper's daughter!"

He looked at her, entranced in his eyes. "Please," he begged. She still persisted. "No—love and marriage are two different things. I'd disappoint you a thousand times if I married you. And you'd grow to hate me and—well, I couldn't stand that."

VINCENT, without a word, reached in his pocket and brought out the ring his mother had given him. He slipped it on her finger. She looked at it wistfully, twisted it on her finger. But she shook her head. "No," she said.

He kissed her. "It's Christmas Eve. Grandest time in the year for two people to decide they can't live without each other. Midnight is a million years away. Let me tell you over and over until now much I love you, and perhaps I can persuade you that nothing you have said makes any difference—except that I want to marry you more than ever!"

She smiled, but began to twist the ring from her finger. "No," she whispered.

Firmly he pushed the ring back. "You've got to wear it!" he said, and there was fierceness in his voice.

"THE thought of Dan Adam in the back room came to Nightingale. At any minute, the trail of the police in the murder of the jeweler might lead to The Merry Gentlemen. Vincent Rocks must not be on the houseboat when police arrived. She must find a way to make him leave.

"I'll wear the ring if you'll promise to leave now and come back tomorrow."

"Oh no! You'll wear the ring, and I'll stay right here to tell you how much I love you!" He grinned.

"Vincent, you can't stay," she pleaded. "You see—something happened tonight. I wrote you a note asking you not to come, but I guess old Joe Jarvis didn't get up to the house in time to give it to you. We're in trouble down here—and I don't want you mixed up in it."

"WHAT kind of trouble?" he demanded.

"I can't tell you—but you must go."

"If you're in trouble, this is the time for me to be right with you."

She wanted to kiss him, but she fought back the impulse. She was thoughtful a moment.

"Well—if you'll promise to stay here until I come back, you may wait," she said finally.

He pulled on a pipe and settled himself in a chair.

"I'd wait the rest of my life for you!" he told her.

"She smiled. 'I love you. I love you. I love you,' she repeated, but she was only whispering it to herself as she left the room.

Publicity About Dental "Desensitizer" Has Led General Public to Expect Too Much

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

WE HAVE heard much of the discovery of a dental desensitizer said to be entirely new. A great deal has been made of the fact that its discovery has been given to the public instead of being exploited for the material benefit of its discoverer. The preparation is called simply "Hartman's Desensitizer" after the man who discovered it—who probably reached such proportions that an emphatic statement has been issued by a Dental Society. It is frankly headed "A Warning" and is a type of publicity used, and deploring it to be "misleading" and "so highly colored as to give the public a mistaken idea relative to the scope of its use."

Scope Is Limited

Above all, they urge, the medicine should not be placed in the hands of the laity for general use in allaying dental pain. It is not even adapted to all types of dental work.

The use of the desensitizer is limited to teeth whose nerves are still alive and in circumstances which permit the use of protectives to prevent the medicine touching the gums.

We are told that scarcely a week after the formula was released by Dr. Hartman, practically all dental offices had a supply. Thus there is no reason for any experimenting at home. The courtesy of Dr. Hartman and the college he represents is duly acknowledged, but the warning is made emphatic. The formula is dangerous in inexperienced hands.

Since the formula and its properties have been made a gift to all tooth sufferers, it may be only proper to repeat and explain it here.

The ingredients are a very simple group: ethyl alcohol, one part; sulphuric ether (which is ordinary ether), two parts; thymol, one and one-fourth parts; all measured by weight.

Cavity Is Dried

The aching cavity is cleansed and thoroughly dried. A pledget of cotton is saturated in the liquid and placed in the cavity. The action takes place through the dentine, which is the bony structure of the tooth, of the same nature as bone but harder.

If you understand the formation of your teeth you will know the dentine is a matrix, a foundation or origin, which is full of minute openings extending into the pulp cavity.

In live tooth these openings or tubules are full of processes that later become the cells of the pulp itself. It is a secretion that goes on, as all the secretions of the body are carried on so long as the tissues are alive.

In order to do any handling of these sensitive areas we must use agents that will rob them of at least the edge of their capacity for feeling which becomes such acute pain.

A very reputable practitioner has just told me the new desensitizer does not work one hundred percent—that some of his older and more familiar agents do better in some cases. Perhaps this variance is due to a difference in the dental field.

We are moved to note that the fear of pain is universal and any palliative is quickly accepted. In this case the ether, if allowed to touch the mucous membranes, would cause severe burns and make trouble.

Dr. Chrisman offers readers the privilege of addressing questions to him care of this column. He will answer questions of general interest in his regular daily column.

Short Cuts

Always soak egg spots in cold water before washing a garment, or use cold water to sponge the spotted area. Often a considerable part of the egg can be scraped away first with the blunt edge of a knife.

To keep bread and cake from drying out place an apple in the bread box.

Oatmeal mixtures are worth a trial in the making of quick breads, muffins and cookies.

Vitamin A is essential to healthy growth. Yellow corn meal, carrots and yellow sweet potatoes are rich sources for this vitamin. Also the green outer leaves of lettuce, cabbage and celery contain more vitamin A than the light inner leaves.

Less bread is wasted when cutting sandwiches in fancy patterns for bridge or tea when the bread is sliced from end to end, the long way.

Manicure Is On Schedule Every Week

By JACQUELINE HUNT

NO self-respecting pair of hands can do without a weekly manicure. Ten nicely shaped nails, with little half-moons at their bases and a lovely luster will make any pair of hands proud to display themselves across the dinner table or bridge table. If you do not believe it, just follow these directions for your next manicure:

Gather all of the necessities before you start. If you have a little manicure kit you will find it a great convenience. If not, keep everything together in a small box—a small roll of cotton, emery boards, orange sticks, nail-polish remover, oil or cream for softening the cuticle, nail white or penicillin for the tips, a liquid or dry polish, a nail brush, a clean towel and a long, flexible steel file.

If you have been using liquid polish remove it before you start shaping the nails. Of course, you know about the oily polish removers, which are much less drying than the old type.

Use the file by the coarse side of an emery board and shape your nails with one-way strokes from the sides of the nail to the tip. If your fingers are long and graceful you may shape them in modifying points, or you may be more reserved and follow the shape of the half-moon at the bottom. Once your nails are shortened and shaped, use the fine side of the emery board to smooth away all rough edges and give a neat beveled effect.

Next wind a small piece of cotton around the end of an orange stick that has been moistened. Dip into your cuticle remover and work carefully around the cuticle of each nail, running the stick under the sides and tips as well to remove any stains or particles of dead skin.

Now scrub your hands in warm, soapy water, using the nail brush earnestly. Dry them thoroughly and use the towel to push back the softened cuticles. If you can avoid it, never use manicure scissors. If there are bits of ragged cuticle at the corners, or if you must remove a hangnail, then use the sharp scissors carefully and cut only what is necessary. If you do not remember to use cuticle oil and push back the cuticles each time you wash your hands, you will find cutting unnecessary.

Apply nail white under the tip of each nail, then rinse your hands and dry thoroughly. Now apply your liquid polish with light, deft strokes from the edge of the half-moon to the nail tips. The polish may be removed from the white tips with a soft cloth or small brush before it has had time to dry.

Some girls like to cover the entire nail with polish, but this is mostly a matter of taste. The trick is to apply it so that you have rather small nails. While you are applying the polish do not allow the brush to come in contact with cotton or cloth, as any little speck of dirt is apt to make the smooth, glossy finish of the nail.

When the nail polish is thoroughly dry, apply cuticle oil and a hand cream and work them into your hands. Massage from the tips of your fingers to the palms, and if you have time, slip on a pair of loose cotton gloves and give your cuticles and skin a chance to absorb as much of the oil and cream as possible.

Gil Dobie Famed for Gloomy Humor

By TALBOT LAKE

THE life of a football coach is adventurous and sometimes anything but pleasant. Witness the case of Gil Dobie, for sixteen years gridiron mentor at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Due to lack of material his teams of late years have fared very poorly indeed, and last season the team failed to win a game. As a result, disgraced alumni have been after his head, until finally they forced him to resign with two years of his contract still to run.

Dobie, however, has had the last laugh, for no sooner did he announce his retirement than he was signed up by Boston College for a period of years. Now, Boston College has had some crack-jack teams, and there are always at least a few good football players around, so Dobie feels he is bettering himself.

He is the coach famed as the gloomy one. In his early days when he coached at the University of Washington his teams didn't lose a game for seven years, but he formed the habit of teasing the worst before each Saturday, until finally his gloominess became a sort of trade mark. However, underneath this attitude is a broad spirit of humor. There was the day before a Cornell-Pennsylvania game when Lou Young, then Penn's coach came to Gil.

"What a grand day this is," said Lou enthusiastically.

"Yes, so far,"

The Dartmouth-Cornell game last fall was a walkover for the Hanoverians, with the Ithaca boys losing a game for forty points.

After the game, Blake, the Dartmouth coach, went down to the train to see Dobie off, and the latter thanked his rival for putting in a long and by no means profitable trip.

"After you got your fifth and sixth string men in we had as gripping a game as I want to see," was Dobie's parting shot.

Removing Nut Skins

The brown skin is easily removed from nut meats if allowed to stand in boiling water until the skin becomes loosened. As a next step pour the nuts into a sieve, rinse with cold water, and drain. Now pour the nuts onto a clean towel and rub off the skins.

Print for Evening

A luminous quality is achieved in this unusual print silk crepe evening gown. The bright multi-colored flowers show highlights of white that look painted. A corsage bouquet of matching silk flowers adorns the front décolletage.

Mannish Mode for Evening Demands the Use of Capes

By IRENE VAIL

New York — It now looks as though an assortment of shirts and one or two dressier blouses will be necessary and, if one likes the dinner suit or the two-piece type of dress in any type, there is the dinner blouse, which may be a tunic. Likewise, if women are going to go in heavily for dinner suits, it follows there must be some radical changes in evening wraps.

The evening suit, usually a very feminine version of white tie and tails, calls for something a bit mannish as to outer attire. The evening cape, white-satin-lined, would seem to be the most logical choice, the sort of cape men used to attend opera in and in isolated Broadway and white satin, and are worn by old aristocrats abroad. Since capes are a woman's preference just now why not the long evening ones as suggested, or the dashing, Italian officer's cape, which always has some sponsors among women?

There is also some interest developing in coats cut on the lines of a Chesterfield, another men's wear classic. All of which is just another way of saying that the mode is going mannish, in fact, has gone mannish, but by no means to the exclusion of feminine fancies.

Naturally, when one elects to do evening suit and appropriate wrap one also elects to wear a muffler, and a white one, of course. It's not unlikely you may not be in sympathy with all this, that you think, as I do, women's clothes are so much more attractive than those permitted men it is difficult to understand why women want to change over. Still they evidently do, since one must comment on current fashions, it is obviously my duty to report this trend, make of it what you will.

Obviously, we women are given a good deal of license in the matter of accessories. Please do not get the impression the dinner suits worn by men. We are still wearing skirts, albeit the dinner suit variety is as pipe stem as possible.

Ski Trail End Leads to Hot, Hardy Supper

By JUDITH WILSON

SNOW and frosty weather always bring fun to the boys and girls, and even to grown-ups, who enjoy skating, sleighing and skiing. And after every outdoor party they send groups of hungry, shak- checked young people into the kitchen for something good to eat, something hearty and hot.

Or, if the young people are sufficiently hardy, they may even take along a supply of substantial food to be eaten around a roaring campfire.

For an outdoor winter picnic take along food that is easily handled. Frankfurters are an excellent choice. Before you leave home, wrap each one in a blanket of bacon, after you have slit it and laid it with mustard. Impale the sticks and toast them over the campfire until the bacon is crisp and the frankfurter hot and juicy.

Hot Mince-meat Tarts with Ice Cream or Hard Sauce
Coffee

If the weather is pleasantly brisk and you have a sheltered spot for your picnic, make coffee with the campfire, otherwise take the coffee from home in vacuum bottles already sweetened to taste and with the cream added.

Butter the frankfurter rolls before leaving home, put pickles into the lunch basket, large doughnuts or crullers, some squares of cheese and salty crackers and you will have a satisfying meal. Be sure to have lots of coffee!

If you prefer coming home where you can have your hot supper in comfort, do most of the preparing in the morning, so your hungry companions will not have to wait for their food. Here are some good supper suggestions:

Bacon-Bean Rarebit
Fry 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion with 1/4 cup chopped bacon until tender. Add 1 cup canned baked beans, 1/2 cup tomato soup or puree, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. When thoroughly heated, add 1/2 cup American cheese cut into small pieces. When the cheese is melted pour over toasted crackers and serve at once.

Baked Oysters
Grease a baking dish and cover the bottom with fine dry bread crumbs. You need 1 pint of oysters and 2 cups cooked macaroni. Put a layer of the macaroni over the crumbs and sprinkle with grated cheese. Add a layer of oysters, sprinkle with bread crumbs, pepper, salt and paprika and dot liberally with butter. Alternate layers of macaroni and oysters until all are used, leaving oysters and crumbs on top. Heat 1/2 cup cream and pour this in from the side of the dish. Bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown. Enough for 4 servings.

Macaroni Diable
Cook in boiling salted water 1 package of macaroni and drain well. Put in a deep greased casserole. Open a can of tomatoes and put them to boil then add 1 onion chopped fine and 1 clove of garlic, melted.

MODERN WOMEN

Some Words About Woman's Unfailing Weakness—a Yen for Uniforms

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

EVEN an elementary knowledge of arithmetic enables one to figure out that sixteen is not pre-war, not even a war baby, so how could one of that age know of the glamor that surrounded all soldiers during the World War? There was then, as in all times of war, something about a soldier that was fine, but it wasn't just his uniform.

The tremendous attraction uniform, not necessarily military uniforms, has for women is extraordinary. It has always existed. It seems to be hopelessly mixed in the feminine mind with bravery and personal strength and valor. Because of this today's letter is peculiarly naive and appealing, so a moment's opinion I am about to express is that the boys who are in mufti are a bit too conscious of the advantage a uniform gives their contemporaries.

Punishment Promised For Next Time Useless

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

NORMAN came into the kitchen where his mother was busy poring over a cookbook, with the ingredients for a cake set out before her. "Mother," the child called. As there was no answer he climbed up onto a chair beside her. He addressed her again, adding this time, "Did you see my blue blocks?"

Mother did not answer immediately, and Norman solved the problem by slapping her. The blow struck mother's upper arm lightly. But she turned to him in a fury. Gripping his shoulders, she threatened, "If you do that again, Norman, I will spank you."

Norman looked frightened so long as mother maintained her hold on him. But the minute she released him, he was visibly relieved and left the kitchen quickly. Inwardly, he was thrilled. He had just been through an exciting time. He had been close to danger, and had had a narrow escape. And that was something to gloat over and to remember.

The child is not likely soon to forget this escapade, nor how it started. The next time he is confronted with a similar set of circumstances, he is bound to be tempted into slapping his mother again. Of course, it is wrong for a child to raise a hand to his mother. But Norman does not know that. He knows only that the last time it happened he was rewarded. That is, he was punished, and in addition he had some very exciting fun. He has every reason to hope the result will be the same next time.

When a child should be corrected do not threaten him with punishment "next time." It is a wasted move, almost as if the parent were condoning the child's action this time. Punish him at once and warn he is not to do it again; that if he does, he will be punished again. Only by such positive action can the parent hope to convince a child she means exactly what she says.

finely chopped and sautéed in 2 tablespoons butter. Season well with salt, pepper, sugar and a dash of cayenne pepper. Add 1 cup chopped cooked chicken or left-over roast pork and 1 cup chopped sautéed mushrooms. Mix well and pour the sauce over the macaroni. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in a very hot oven until the sauce bubbles and the cheese is melted.

Average Remains Good

Wives have lived in army posts and have pitched their tents in the far corners of the world to be with their uniformed husbands. I haven't a doubt but that the percentage of happy marriages is not much below the average picked from any strata of society, or that there are not just as many disillusioned wives. On the same principle that a book cannot be judged by its binding, a man cannot be judged by the uniform he wears—or doesn't wear.

Sixteen is over young to be thinking seriously about such things, but not too young to be drilled in watching the great parade of males go marching by or halting at her doorstep. The test of character is not to be determined by the dash with which a man carries his uniform.

To be on the safe side make a point of discounting the glamor uniforms invariably have for our sex.

Many a war bride would have been spared her heartache had she waited until her hero was demobilized before hindering herself to him for what it pleases us still to refer to as life. With the discarded uniform, illusion faded out of all possibility for the male mind to grasp.

Even a bellhop seems to have a distinct edge on the neighboring gang, while a sandpaper, the awe-inspiring doorman done up in gold braid, or the movie usher seem to have the ability to bow the women old enough to know better, which may, after all, be your case.

If you are in a position to be constantly exposed to the lure of the uniform and are particularly susceptible to it, try to hold fast to a picture of your stalwart hero in something less dazzling to the eye.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondence. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

PLENTY OF OVEN ROOM

No longer does limited roasting and baking capacity handicap the housewife when preparing for large parties. This new electric range has two separate ovens, one for large roasts and food and a smaller oven for ordinary needs. These new ranges also incorporate another important feature in the surface unit for "simmering," which uses only one-tenth the wattage of the unit instead of the usual one-fourth wattage.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "When a guest has high score at a bridge club is it proper for her to receive first prize, or should it be given to a member of the club having second high score?—T. A. F."

ANSWER: The guest should get the prize, of course. Where the situation is reversed, with a club member having high score and a guest second high score, many club members make a practice of conferring the prize upon the guest. The principle here is the same as when a business playing in her home gets high score. She would not think of keeping the prize for herself, but automatically turns it over to whoever has the next highest score.

QUESTION: "May long gloves be turned back at the wrist when dining in a restaurant?—B. C. V."

ANSWER: It is in better taste to remove them entirely.

QUESTION: "Is it incorrect to say 'Pleased to know you' and 'How do you do' and 'So, why?'—F. R."

ANSWER: One may say, "I am pleased to know you" and "How do you do?" The forms which you suggest are incorrect because they are incomplete sentences.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I am a woman of forty-five, tall and rather well-built. My hair has reached the stage called 'iron' and I believe, I would like to know, except I have a skin that isn't healthy and keeps much of its brownish tones the year round. My eyes are dark blue. Can you suggest some good costume colors for me? Some thing that would make the contrast between my skin and hair less noticeable?—Old Maid."

Play up the contrast between your skin and hair and see how stunning you can be! First be sure your skin has a warm tan or golden look about it, however. Care for it and pep up the circulation, with an occasional mask or treatment with a special cream. Use a warm wash of red, coral rouge and lipstick.

Wear shades of steady gray with touches of clear, bright red in your accessories, navy blue with accents of white and small patterned prints in which blue, red and red predominate. For occasions when you wish to be very feminine you might wear brown or coral lace. For best bet, though, is gray with touches of red. A mannish trimmed suit, a sleek fitted coat of gray or kidskin, a smartly tailored suit of gray with red costume jewelry or accessories makes a decided and desirable about which might build for entire wardrobe. Be sure to accent your eyes with black mascara and a touch of black eye shadow.

Nine Killed In Bitter Battle In Spain Elections

MADRID, Feb. 18.—UP.—Nine persons had been killed and 66 wounded up to 10 o'clock tonight in fighting attending the riotous general election of Sunday. In which left wing radicals were triumphant.
Five were killed and a wounded during the voting. The remainder were shot in disturbances today and yesterday, with peace not yet in sight. The victorious radicals clamored for immediate power, instead of waiting for the new parliament to meet March 15.
Spanish jails are filled with political prisoners, most of them participants in the abortive revolt of October, 1934. Leftists claim there are more than 30,000 of these prisoners.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel even a little bit of the world's most common ailment, don't swallow a lot of salts, minerals, and laxatives, or worse, calomel. You can wake up your liver and bile by taking a few drops of this liquid bile daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just stays in the bowels, causing a more or less constant feeling of fullness. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two ounces of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

Carlson and Collins had been retained and would appear in the case. The story of the indictment of Mrs. McCord, her flight to Reno, while the deliberations of the grand jury were in progress, the search for her for almost a year, her capture about ten days ago in Salt Lake City, and the attempt while she was in hiding to connect her with a sterilization scandal, are facts familiar to readers of newspapers in Northern California.

Mrs. McCord since her apprehension and return here has stoutly maintained that she was guilty of no wrongdoing and that she will be vindicated when all the facts are laid before a jury in the Superior court next week.

Hints of sensational developments at the trial have become persistent here within the past few days but the nature of them has been very closely guarded.

It was rumored that a motion to dismiss the indictments would meet with the sanction of District Attorney Francis P. Healey. This, however, was emphatically denied by Healey, who said that as long as the grand jury saw fit to indict Mrs. McCord it was his duty to prosecute her to the best of his ability.

Neutrality Law Is Extended To First Of May

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—UP—The Senate today beat down a drive for more drastic legislation to stifle trade with warring nations and voted to extend until May 1, 1937, the temporary neutrality law banning arms shipments and loans to belligerents.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., chief advocate of a comprehensive and permanent neutrality act, made a dramatic 1500-mile flight from Minneapolis but arrived too late to contest the Senate action. He wanted permanent neutrality legislation at the session.

Nye was in his seat when the Senate approved the House resolution passed yesterday, but the fight was over. Without a record vote the Senate had completed congressional action, and only the President's signature is needed to extend the law.

Now come the scientists at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, at Pittsburgh, and in a book, do away with old adages and ideas concerning food, just like that!

We are informed that no food combination is poisonous; no one selects the foods best suited for himself; most of the acid (sour) fruits give alkaline reactions in the body; sugars and starches in themselves are not harmful and food may be kept in open cans, if kept cool. The book points out the foods needed for longevity, nervous conditions, body building and energy. And we are also informed what vitamins are good for us. Vitamin "A" is needed for long life; Vitamin "D" develops the body along the West line and Vitamin "E" strengthens the nerves.

Perhaps the boys are right, I am not prepared to say, but personally I have survived the rigors of quite a number of winters by following the rule of eating what I knew agreed with me and avoiding those foods which caused inner commotion. The Treasury announcement said there was a "presumptive violation of the provision of the gold reserve act of 1934 prohibiting possession of gold except under license." The penalty is forfeiture of the gold and a fine of twice its value.

It was emphasized that the investigation is not yet completed.

The Treasury was unable to say whether possession of the gold may have constituted a violation of the 1933 emergency banking act. Executive orders issued under this act provided a penalty of up to 10 years imprisonment for gold hoarding.

ANN TELLS COURT ABOUT OPERATION

her estate in New Jersey courts, and her attorney subsequently uncovered purported evidence which caused him to file a $500,000 damage suit in her behalf, did she learn what had been done, she said.

Earlier in the day prosecution witnesses made two sensational charges in testifying.

PLANNED OPERATION

Grace Wilkins, nurse who attended the 21 year old heiress to a $2,000,000 fortune at the time of the sterilization, testified that Dr. S. G. Boyd said after performing the operation he was "afraid he had made a terrific mistake."

Florence Slavich, former companion of Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt McCarter, Ann's mother, said that the operation was planned by Mrs. McCarter at least a month in advance of its performance in August, 1934.

"Ann's a nut, I'm going to consult Dr. Tiltman and have her fixed up. I'll tell her it's an appendicitis operation," Mrs. McCarter allegedly told Mrs. Slavich at Coronado Beach in July, 1934.

FACES CHARGES

Dr. Tiltman, Tiltman, long-time friend and medical adviser of the Hewitts now faces trial with Dr. Boyd on mayhem charges brought by Police Inspector George Bengler. The present hearing will determine whether the case will be presented to Superior court.

Mrs. McCarter also was named in the mayhem complaint, but has not been served with a warrant in the case. She reportedly is in New York or New Jersey, critically ill. All three, with Mrs. Mary Scally, a psychiatrist, have been named in a separate civil suit brought by Ann, asking $500,000 damages for the sterilization, which she charges was a part of a plot to give the mother control of her fortune. Mrs. Scally was not named in the mayhem complaint.

• In Maryland and Kentucky, tobacco is air-cured in specially ventilated barns.

• In Virginia and the Carolinas, "Bright" tobacco is flue-cured by heat in log barns.

• In Turkey and Greece, tobacco is sun-cured by hanging on racks in the open air.

We cure each tobacco in a Chesterfield the way that is best for that tobacco
... another reason why Chesterfields are milder and taste better

When we say that a tobacco is good enough for Chesterfield cigarettes, we mean just this—

... TOBACCO that is ripened in the sunshine, then picked, leaf by leaf, when fully ripe.

... TOBACCO that is cured just right by the farmer—flue-cured, air-cured or sun-cured to seal in its good aroma and flavor.

... TOBACCO that is aged and mellowed in hogsheads or bales for two years or more until free from harshness or bite.

That is the kind of tobacco we use for Chesterfields—mild, ripe tobacco, cured just right and aged for flavor and taste.

Outstanding
... for mildness
... for better taste
